Washington, Feb. 13.

MR. WEBSTER AND THE GLOBE:

The Tory press are busily circulating a charge against Mr. Webster, of falsely denying the statement in the Globe, that he was indebted to the Commonwealth Bank. The following are the facts of the case

In December, 1836, Mr. Webster drew a bill at Washington for $10,000 on a person in Portland payable in six months. The bill was not peid by the acceptor and drawee, and was returned protested to the Commonwealth Bank, where it happened to be lodged for collection.

Mr. Webster, the drawer, was notified of the non-payment, and the amount was immediately paid by him. This is the true history of the affair out of which the Loco Foco papers following in the footsteps of the Globe, have made a charge of Mr. Webster's "having his notes protested at the Commonwealth Bank for $19,000 at a time.

in addressing the Senate, recently, upon the wealth Bank, Mr. Webster said

The Globs of Saturday, still pursuing a course of meddling with the private concerns of public men, which course, nevertheless, it admits is exceedingly despicable, reiterates charges of my having had paper dishonored at this Commonwealth Banks The obvious object of all this, as of the former article, it is evident, is to hold out an appearance that I owe the bank, or have owed it in times past. I think it very likely that by the time this statement of the Globe gets a hundred miles from Washington, it will be as amplified as to represent me as an acknowledged debtor to the bank to a great amount and, by the time it gets over the mountains, the send a vessel of war to protect the lives and failure of the bank will be mainly ascribed, very possibly, to its loans to me. I repeat, therefore, that I never owed the bank a dollar, so far as I remember, nor eyer had any pecuniary transac-

The statement is, that a bill drawn by me, and accepted; war sent to the bank for collection, and not duly paid by the acceptor. It was of course returned upon the drawer, and duly paid and taken up by him. All this is very unimportant and innocent; but it is elated as it same port on the 4th, bringing $201,656 in with studious design, to represent me as a debtbank had no interest in it whatever; and, in the second place, it was duly paid by the drawer on the acceptor's neglect. As to any acceptance of my own, sent to that bank for collection, being protested, I never heard of it, to my knowledge, If such a thing happened, it must have been accidental, and owing to some mistake as to the day, which was seasonably corrected. Nor can it be true that any note or bill with my name on it was handed over to another bank on the failure of this Commonwealth Bark unless it was some dead note or bill which had been stready paid to these who are entitled to receive payment. This apparent and obvious purpose of representing his as a debtor to the bank, or as ever having been a borrower at it, is founded in sheer misrepresentation and falsehood. I perceive that the directors or officers, of this bank hase been busying themselves to lielp out the stetements of the Globe; yet no one of them says I ever owed the bank a dollar in the world, they night, Elblok be better employed. It has been stated publicly that these officers have helped themselves to loans, from their own bank, to an amount exceeding the amount of all its capital, and then failed, bank and all, leaving water-yes abot verit is, must have miner it prodigious man of unsedecined paper upon fir _: ti_ : since, a person by the name of the hands of the Public. The facility with which the converts to Locofocoism take their new position, is most wonderiul. It is not possible, however, that any thing short of a miracle could have so suddenly illuminated their understandings, captivated their hearts, and quiefed every compunction. It is but a few short months since the State Bank | the name of the town of Hurt-raville. deposite system was incomparably superior to a United States Bank; the touch-stone of democracy, and a sufficient glory to have served under States Bank, facilitated the exchanges, were found "most safe, convenient, responsible and economical" fiscal agents of the Government, and answered all the ends of the Jackson party. But the "summer of the son of York," seems to have brought the "winter of discontent," upon many who beasted most of the triumph of their "experiment.". The paltering policy of the Treasury Department, and the mismanaged execution of the Deposite Act, brought sin upon the banks and all their wo. He would however add that he was well acquainted with the gentlemen who asked for this Act of incorporation. They had been at great expense in erecting a dam across the Kennebec, and they now only desired the privilege of using the water power they had

Mr. Levenselet inquired if the charter did not now authorize them to use this power for manulacturing purposes.

Mr. Vosc replied that it did not. Mr. Marble withdrew his motion

Mr. Levenseler moved to amend the Bill after the word grain by striking out "and Lumber of every description, and also of engaging in such other branches of trade and manufacture as may be necessarily or conveniently connected therewith.

Mr. Vose said the amendment proposed was an important one. He did not wish the subject to be trifled with, neither did he wish the House to be precipitate in their action upon it he therefore moved that the bill and amendment be laid for the present, on the table; agreed to.
